Need to be able to change chords easily	Would be nice to be able to change chord presets from the Studio Mode screen.	When picker is on-screen, shake device to randomize (suggest) a chord	Need a call-to-action/instructions on how to change chords. No tutorial, we need the UI to be as clear & intuitive as possible
Needs to be able to select chord presets easily	Make sure UI is prepped to add the recording feature.	Be prepared when we add the recording feature	(afraid the tutorial will not be engaging enough due to the amount of UI).

Backlog Feedback
- Possibly add a disclosure arrow
- Make sure "Studio Mode" button is grayed out before the presets are unlocked
- When a chord preset is unlocked, the modal should display a button to go to "Studio Mode", or Post-Song screen
- Possibly use icon/symbol instead of "Studio Mode" label

The "Studio Mode" button has a "swing in" animation similar to the coin balance UI on the Songbook.

Chuck: Still need to figure out how recording will work with the current design.

iPad Version: Enlarged chord buttons to make it easier to tap, but also not too large to make it difficult to reach the top and bottom with your left hand.

Also enlarged to be able to display the shortened chord name.

Chord names will auto-resize to a certain size (see "Ddim" above)

When a chord is held, the horizontal strings will also change colors to match that chord (currently only the line of scrimmage changes colors)

Josh: Look into adding 7 chord buttons to cover everything.

Transition: Chord names "expand" to make it a less intimidating experience to change chords.

SFX: Tapping on a chord to change it will trigger the sound of the chord. Players can continually tap to hear the sound.

SFX: trigger chord once the picker rests for 0.5 seconds. The "audio icon" change states to the push-state (as a visual hint/cue to use this button whenever they wish to hear the chord.)

Transition: Chord buttons animate slightly downward to be right under the header area.

Michael: Not necessary to use position on neck for the chord picker. We can set the chords as they are without auto-generating.

We can possibly chart out the chords so we can manually control and reduce the amount of work.
